

When I looked at the sky during the day the first thing I saw was a plane zooming through the air. I also saw some big fluffy white clouds and the bright yellow sun.

When I looked at the sky at night I saw some bright shining stars and a very tiny moon. The moon looked like a banana.

Yes, in the day time I was able to see much different things than I could at night. And I could see more things.