Do you like competing at sports with your family? A few years ago, I had my first win at golf in the ongoing mother/son golf challenge. Evan and I have had a fun rivalry where we tease each other about who is going to win. I was finally the champ on Monday, September 4th, 2017. It wasn't a fun night for Evan though because he was mad that he lost. That evening was a memorable one at the golf course when I finally got my big win.

The Evan vs. Mom golf rivalry is almost as big as the JMH vs MVHS sports rivalry. Evan and I had been playing golf against each other for two summers before the big day. Evan always won the golf game when he played with me. During the summer of 2017, I practiced each week and took lessons in hopes that I would be able to beat Evan even once. We played each other once a week all summer. It was time for me to be the champion so I could brag to my rival Evan.

Monday, September 4th was an exciting day at the golf course because that was the day that I out-golfed Evan. We arrived at the course around 6 pm for one last match before school started. Evan suggested playing the back nine again since those holes are a little bit tougher. I think he thought it would be harder for me to win on the back nine. It turns out that it was my night and after we played the first four holes I was winning and there was no way that Evan could come back. The last day of summer vacation was a good one for me at the MGCC back in 2017.

Evan loved talking big when he was winning but once his mother was in the lead he started to get really mad. After he missed some shots he banged his club against the ground. I know that losing is hard sometimes. When playing sports or competing in games, it is not as fun when someone is not a good sport. Losing is hard because it is disappointing and I guess getting beat by your old mother makes some people mad!

Since that day, we have played against each other a few more times. Evan is still a little bit better than me at golf and the Evan vs Mom rivalry continues with more golf games against each other and some friendly competition. Even though my son Evan wins most of the time when we play, I am glad that I beat him once at the end of that summer. They say you can't win them all and now that he is older, I hope that Evan will not get mad the next time I beat him. Whatever happens this summer, it will always be on record that Evan got beat at golf by his mom!
